OGDEN IS FACING

Supply of Dealers Is Nearly Exhausted and No Coal Comes In.

SCHOOLS OF THE CITY MAY HAVE TO CLOSE

Railroad Men Say That Trouble Lies in Lack of Power on Lines.

OGDEN, Oct. 30 -The cold spell that struck Ogden this morning is aggravated by the fact that the city is confronted by a coal famine that it seems will be of a graver character than ever before experienced, and which is even now threatening to close many of the schools of Ogden.

Cutting Down Purchasers. Inquiry from all the coal dealers made this afternoon revealed the fact that they were without coal and that in no case today did has dollver more than 1000 pounds to one taken. Even with this dolling tonight it was nearly impossible to sective a temporary supply. One dealer reported that he had on hand only a few sacks of an interior article.

SENSATIONAL ADDRESS MADE TO JURORS

Prosecuting Attorney Eloquently Answers the Arguments of the Defense.

special to The Tribune LOGAN, Utah, Oct. 30.-The case of Anderson at Smithfield on July 17 last, was given to the jury at 4:25 p. m. today, and this evening a veridet of not guilty was rendered. The defense rested its case this forenoon and at 2 o'clock Attorney George Q. Rich adireased the jury for the State, making a pointed and forceful argument. He was followed by Attorney Frank K. Nebeker, who made an impassioned appeal for his client, in which he made it appear that McCann is a man of irreproachable char McCann is a man of irreproachable character and entirely incapable of wilfully committing an assault such as is charged in the complaint. He also held the prosecuting witness. Anderson, who suffered a compound fracture of the jaw at the hands of McCann, up before the jury as a victous, villainous, murderous acoundred, who bears a bad reputation in the community where he lives, reiterating his statement that Anderson had called McCann at the time of the trouble an unprintable name, placing forceful emphasis on the word Mormon as had frequently been done during the course of the trial by both himself and witnesses.

Prosecutor's Eloquent Plea.

Mr. Nebeker was followed by the prosecuting attorney, S. J. Holton, who eloquently answered the argument of the defense, creating a very favorable impression if one may judge by expressions of the face. It was not however, until he reached the closing part of his argument that he deigned to notice repeated use throughout the case by the defense of the phrase "d— Mormon" This he seemed to have in reserve, holding it for the strategic moment when he said: "There is one point I am sorry to have to notice just here, and that is the studied effort on the part of the defense to appeal to the religious prejudice of this jury. They have, unfortunately, injected into this case the word Mormon. The prosecuting witness, Mr. A. C. Anderson, has by them been made to call this defendant a d—Mormon, and this evidently for the purpose of creating prejudice to prejudice you to lead you to believe Anderson is not a Mormon and hence untrustworthy.

I prosecute men regardless of religion, be they Mormon or non-Mormon, and this effort on the part of the defense is a vicious one designed to prejudice you against this witness. Whatever epithels Anderson may nave used at the time of the assault by the defendant, do not justify him in the attack which he made. The courts were open to him and these he should have used instead of taking the law into his own hands.
